

Abstract of the Disclosure

The apparatus of the present invention for forming a coating film on a substrate by applying a coating liquid to the substrate comprises: a spin chuck for holding the substrate; a motor for rotating the spin chuck; and a nozzle for dropping the coating liquid on the center surface of the substrate. The nozzle included a spiral groove or a plurality of fins for giving a gyrating force to the dropped coating liquid.